good. Collins feared that if the orders cancelling evacuation of British troops from Ireland were continued in force they would weaken the powers of the provisional government.

For the first time it was admitted in Downing street circles this afternoon that the free state bill (conferring the powers of the Anglo-Irish treaty upon the Dublin government) may not pass the house of commons. The opinion was expressed that the fate of the bill will depend upon conditions in Ireland when the vote is taken at the end of this week.

The future of the Lloyd George ministry hangs upon the fate of this measure. If commons votes down the bill the premier will resign at once. If the bill is passed by only a small majority it is expected that the premier will call a general election.

Michael Collins, minister of finance of the Irish free state, has obtained the release of fifteen of the Ulster men kidnaped recently, Winston Churchill, colonial secretary, announced in the house of commons this afternoon.

LIVED ON MILK AND TOAST FOR MANY MONTHS

Mrs. McDaniel Says No One Ever Had A More Stubborn Case of Stomach Trouble Than She Did. Now In Perfect Health and Eats Anything On Table

"I am in better health than I have been at any time in the last ten years and I am convinced Tanlac is the very best medicine man ever made," said Mrs. J. A. McDaniel, 1614 South High St., Columbus, Ohio.

"I don't believe anybody ever had a more stubborn case of stomach trouble than I did. When I began taking Tanlac I was living entirely on milk and toast and was growing weaker and thinner every day or night and I just had a feeling all the time that something dreadful was going to happen. Why, I was even afraid to cross the street by myself.

"I had no idea any medicine could make such a difference in a person in so short a time as Tanlac has made in me. My appetite is splendid, my digestion couldn't be improved upon and I am gaining in weight every day. My nerves have quieted down, too, and in fact, I am just like a different person.

Tanlac is sold in Elyria by J. Adolphus Ebert and leading druggists everywhere.—Advt.

Miners Plan

it se's up a court of last resort and this nullifies the declaration as to collective bargaining. The bill has nothing the miners want and they will stubbornly oppose it."

Union leaders were not backward in the least in admitting today that the conference in Chicago, February 21, with the railway union men who have been invited into a defensive alliance with the miners, is political and not strictly economic.

The Chicago conferences offer "wonderful opportunities" along political lines, the miners believe. Many of the leaders here admit that they do not look for an alliance with the railroads on a plan to cause a "tieup of the railroads and coal industry April 1, but they do expect a political alliance that will assert itself in congressional and other contests.

Take Strike Vote.

Anthracite and bituminous coal workers will take a referendum within the next three weeks to decide whether or not to suspend operations April 1 if new wage contracts have not been negotiated by that date.

Just as soon as the miners' national convention ratifies the report of the scale committee a call will be issued for such a vote and preparations will be made speedily, union leaders said today, to start voting. A date will be set casting ballots and four or five

The Congregationals are one of the leading contenders for the championship of the Cleveland Church League and have always been on the long end of the score at the final whistle.

The local Methodist five have as yet to taste defeat by the hands of an Elyria five and are leading the Church League with a record of six victories and no defeats. The locals have on their roster such stars as Rankin, Reynolds and Cook as guards. Either Bills or Geals plays a snappy game at center. While Granger, Johnson and Keller will cause considerable trouble to the opposing guards.

In the preliminary game which starts at 7:45 the Methodist Jrs. will battle against the Congregational Jrs. Much rivalry exists between these two teams and they are tied for first place in the Junior Church League. These games will be played at the Local Y. M. C. A.

STOMACH UPSET?
Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach trouble.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. [illegible]

[illegible] "Where's mother, Aunt Margaret?" she queried.

"She Is a Thief."

"I think she went to her room," I returned.

"You're sure she isn't at the front of the house?"

"No, dear."

"All right." She threw herself into a dance posture, gradually wriggled over to the place where she had deposited the necklace, made a swift swoop and picked something up, concealing it in her robe, and floated off again into the centre of the improvised ring. There she stopped and called to Marion who was industriously turning another series of handsprings as a finale to her part of the program.

"This will be the finish of the first part of the entertainment," she announced importantly. "Now, come around to the side of the house while we get up that Wild West show. Come along Jerry."

She led the way around the side of the house, while Lillian and I smiled at each other over her bustling air. But both smiles were tempered with regret for the unlovely characteristic which we had seen displayed by Mary Harrison.

"Margaret! Margaret!"

Elizabeth Harrison's voice, raucous, excited, came to us from down the hall, and a second later she had appeared at the door of the room again. For the first time I saw her shorn of her precious composure. Her face was flushed, and her eyes held an ugly glitter.

"I have found out the reason why our maid left so suddenly and mysteriously, Margaret," she said nastily. "She is a thief. My Oriental necklace is gone—has been stolen, and, of course, she has taken it."

"Mother! Oh, Mother!"

For an instant I saw red, and I am afraid I was perilously near to blurting out the truth to her, betraying poor, naughty, little Mary to her mother's wrath. Then the habit of years, and the laws of hospitality to which I have always done reverence, steadied me, and I replied quietly:

"I am sure you are mistaken, Elizabeth. Katie has been with me for years and while she is meddlesome, she is absolutely honest. I will help you hunt for the necklace, and I am sure you will find it somewhere about the place. You may have dropped it."

"Are you insinuating that I have become feeble-minded, Margaret?" Elizabeth's manner was magnificently contemptuous. "I am not in the habit of dropping my jewels"—her manner suggested a large and valuable collection—"and I distinctly remember locking this into my case before Katie left. I have not taken it out since."

"You keep your keys where any one could have access to them, then?" I inquired smoothly.

By a certain startled look in her eyes I knew as well as if she had spoken that something had occurred to her which quashed her theory of Katie's guilt. But she is the type of woman who never recedes from a position once she has taken it.

"I keep them where no one but a clever thief could find them," she retorted, then added querulously: "But, of course, I'll make a thorough search for them. You do not object if I go into all the rooms, do you? Katie may have become frightened and have hidden it after she took it, or, of course there is a possibility that some child may have meddled."

She was looking straight at Lillian as she spoke, but my friend smiled at her as if she had just uttered the most amusing jest in the world.

"Pray take my room first, Madge," she said carelessly, turning to the window and seating herself in a big armchair. And while Elizabeth turned over everything rudely, she watched her with a quiet smiling amusement which I guessed was driving my sister-in-law wild. We went on, Elizabeth and I, to the other rooms, and searched them thoroughly. Finally, my sister-in-law said decisively:

"It's no use, Margaret, either Katie has it or that Marion has taken it out to play with—what's that?"

From the yard had come an ear-piercing shriek—Marion's voice:

"Mother! Oh, mother! Quick—quick—quick!"

WE CAN POINT WITH PRIDE

Various republican leaders are discussing the accomplishments of the republican administration thus far. Altho we are not of the opinion that everything that is done in an administration should be either charged or credited to that particular administration, yet, as that seems to be the basis for the judgment of people, we can point, with considerable pride, to that which has already been done.

The outstanding act of the administration was the calling and directing the peace conference, the result of that conference can really be claimed as the fruit of the administration's work.

While, to be sure, a democratic senator was one of the delegates, at the same time it was a republican president who made the appointment.

The settlement of the Shantung controversy, the termination of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, and the first great step toward disarmament, are therefore the fruits of the administration.

We should also appreciate that the administration is addressing itself to cutting down expense, and keeping within the budget.

As to the question of the revenue measure, or the taxation law, time alone will determine whether under it sufficient revenue will be raised to meet the tremendously high expense, under which the government will necessarily be placed for years to come.

As Congressman Fess said in his address here at the Kiwanis club, "We must never expect to get back to the conditions of taxation as prevailed before the war." Owing to our great debt, we will be under a budget each year of expenditure at least four times as great as the amount prevailing prior to the world war.

SUGGESTS HAYS CONDUCT A S. S. CLASS

The Reverend George G. Dowey of Chicago suggests that the Presbyterian elder, Will Hays, who is soon to be the schoolmaster of Hollywood, shall establish a Sunday School class among the actors and actresses and make them all go to church.

It is hoped by many that Mr. Hays will really be able to exercise some regenerating influence, in directions where it is needed, but we fear that what fimdom is trying to do is to buy some reputation for respectability at $150,000 a year, so as to enable the carousals and orgies to go on as usual.

It will be a difficult thing to reform filmdom from the top, or from the outside, by hiring somebody to be the brown stone front. There is a surer and better way.

THEY MUST SALUTE

We notice that Mayor Oles of Youngstown requests all police officers to salute him on the street.

A very short time ago this Mayor said that he had been talking too much He will soon conclude he has been giving too many orders, and it looks to us that Youngstown will soon conclude, if it has not already done so, that it perpetrated an expensive joke on itself when it elected this man Mayor.

THEY WANT THEIR LABEL ON THEM

We notice that the Cleveland Plain Dealer rather ...arily suggests a change in the direct primary law, so ...at the party organization, which means those that con...l it, shall be able to put their label upon a man.

What a great many people have been wondering is ... some men, still sit in, and to a large measure control ...arty council.

...his difficulty the primary law has not abolished, ...has mightily clipped the powers of these men.

TO THE CITIZENS OF LORAIN COUNTY

A few days ago I announced my candidacy for the nomination for Sheriff of Lorain County. Many of my acquaintances have volunteered me their support. I appreciate it.

There are more voters in the county I do not know than those I do. It is not so important that as a candidate I know you. It is important that you know concerning all the candidates.

You should learn what his experience has been Is he a man of maturity? Is he a man of good judgment? Do his own ideas and habits of life square with the law, which it will be his duty to enforce?

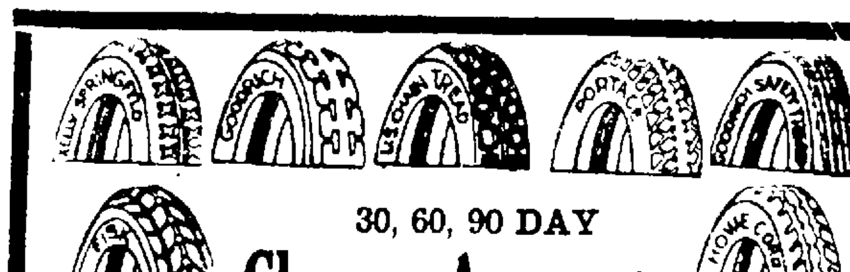

These, and other things you should know. Learn your men.

Even as I am a candidate I am also a citizen, and I know we want to have continued the good service now being rendered in the Sheriff's Office

So I say, "Learn who your candidates are."
